GLENDALE CHAPTER

AMERICAN RED CROSS SOCIETY REJOICES WHEN CHARTER IS RECEIVED

By Walt. Le Noir Church
At last it has come. After weeks of effort, of watching, waiting and working, the necessary red tape has been unrolled, and the Glendale Chapter of the American Red Cross Society is an accomplished fact, an inspiring reality which will move to further patriotic effort the Glendale Legion who wear the badge of the Great Helper who would say, were he among us in person, "Take up your Red Cross and follow me."

That Glendale Legion of Rosierucians is more than one thousand strong and it is growing daily. We hope to make it two thousand before 1917 becomes a back number. President Braly of the Glendale Red Cross made no mistake when he urged the election of a vice-chairman, the Rev. T. F. McCrea, and committed to him the duty and the privilege of doing whatever was necessary to comply with the wisely ordained prerequisites for obtaining a charter of our own, instead of longer being a mere auxiliary to the Los Angeles Chapter or, as some urged, to the flourishing Pasadena Chapter of the American Red Cross. Many good Glendallians thought it could not be done. "How is it possible," thought they, "for Glendale to obtain the necessary one thousand members?" But they evidently did not realize the ability for achievement possessed by the original band of Rosierucians, particularly by the Chairman of the Membership Committee, Mrs. R. E. Chase, and her able assistants along all auxiliary lines, especially the versatile and efficient Entertainment Committee, Dr. Henry R. Harrower.

But all that is well-known history to Glendallians, and to many who wish they were Glendallians, including scores of good workers who live across the imaginary line which official boundary makers ran between Glendale and Tropic, a line soon to be obliterated, by the grace of God and the co-operation of the two sister cities, whose consolidation will bring a glorious prosperity never realized before.

The good news that the Glendale Chapter's charter had arrived was informally announced by our jubilant secretary, Mrs. Mabel Franklin Ocker, in the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, Saturday night, at the first general meeting of workers for the Allies' Fiesta. The good news was brought by her father, Mr. J. H. Franklin, who had just received the message from Vice-Chairman McCrea. As soon as may be, the first formal meeting of the Glendale Chapter of the American Red Cross Society will be held, at the call of the president.

Fortunately, there is at hand a perfectly splendid opportunity to fittingly celebrate the reception of our charter, and make possible a great achievement as the first public work of the Glendale Chapter of the American Red Cross Society.

It is this. The Glendale Red Cross will have charge of the United States' Booth at that unique Garden Party and Fiesta of the Allies, next Saturday. Never in Glendale was there such an opportunity for patriotic initiative and practical achievement for the Red Cross on such a scale. The workers realize the opportunity and are busy. The results will speak for themselves.

Meanwhile any donations for the United States' Booth should be sent to the chairman, Mrs. Menzo Williams, 1325 North Central avenue, Glendale. If more convenient to donor, they may be sent through Miss Ina Whitaker, 208 West Ninth street, Glendale, Residence Phone Glendale 586-J, Los Angeles Home 10082, General Manager of the Allies' Fiesta; or to Mrs. Mabel Franklin Ocker, Secretary Glendale Chapter, American Red Cross Society, 200 South Central avenue, Glendale; or to President J. H. Braly, 200 North Brand boulevard, Glendale; or to the offices of the Glendale British Ambulance Society, Broadway and Glendale avenue; or to Glendale Chamber of Commerce.

Miss Ina Whitaker, secretary of the Glendale Branch of the British Ambulance society and general manager of the Fiesta of the Allies, was the first to become a member of the Glendale chapter of the American Red Cross after our charter was received.

The secretary of the Glendale Chapter, Mrs. Mabel Franklin Ocker, has from the beginning and is still doing all the arduous work connected with her office without pay except the gratification that comes from working in such a noble cause.

HAPPENINGS IN STATE

EXAMINATIONS TO BE GIVEN FOR SEALERS OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 16.—County sealers of weights and measures who will be affected by the new weights and measures amendment effective July 30 providing that all sealers in counties other than those of the first to thirty-fifth classes, the sealers shall be appointed by the state sealer and not the supervisors, will have an opportunity to retain their positions.

Charles G. Johnson, state sealer, announces that competitive examinations will be given and those who have the highest ratings will retain their present jurisdiction, together with two or more additional counties, thereby providing for them continual employment.

Under the new law, according to Johnson, the enforcement of the weights and measures act will be more practical, efficient and economical. Johnson is now touring the south explaining the new weights and measures act passed by the last legislature.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 16.—Despite the quiet state which has prevailed in the real estate market in California for the last two or three years, there has been very little depreciation in values judging from the returns of county assessors for this year's taxation, which now are coming in to the state board of equalization.

These returns show that the assessors have been able to maintain their former assessed values and in most instances their reports show an increase.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 16.—The state civil service commission has announced an examination for the position of apple packing inspector to be held at Sebastopol, Sonoma county, July 23, and another for sanitary inspector of the state board of health to be held August 11.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 16.—W. G. McMillin, state purchasing agent, has announced that the Shell Oil Company of California has been awarded the contract for furnishing 5000 barrels of oil monthly to the state harbor commission at San Francisco. The contract price is $1.44½ cents per barrel.

IMPERIAL, Cal., July 16.—This year's harvest in the Imperial valley will exceed that of last year by $15,000,000, according to a prediction made by Luther G. Brown, chairman of the home gardens committee.

Last year the harvest was valued at $25,000,000. This year Imperial's crops are estimated to be worth $40,000,000, or a per capital value of $1250, the highest in the valley's history.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 16.—Members of the California Ladies Auxiliary of the Ancient Order of Hibernians are gathered here to-day for the opening of their annual convention. The convention will remain in session until Friday.

BERKELEY, Cal., July 16.—High school teachers from all parts of California are in attendance at the annual convention of the California High School Teachers Association which opened here this morning. In addition to addresses by leading educators of the country, various departments of the association will meet during the week of the convention, to discuss special phases of the teacher's work.

Dr. E. R. Hedrick of the University of Missouri, Dr. C. E. Seashore of the University of Iowa, Prof. A. F. Lange of the University of California, Thomas H. Reed, city manager of San Jose, and James Huff McCurdy, director of the International Y. M. C. A. Training School at Springfield, Mass., are among the speakers who will be in attendance.

JOINS AVIATION CORPS

E. E. Williams of Glendale, who came to Redondo Beach last Friday night to enjoy an extended vacation, and had previously enlisted in the aviation corps, received a telegram from the war department to immediately report at San Diego. As a result his pleasant stay in Redondo Beach was broken up, but he is glad to commence active training for service in France. He left Redondo Beach Saturday night.—Redondo Reflex.

LARAMIE, Wyoming, July 16.—Twenty I. W. W.'s were arrested when leaving here, when they were found to have had in their possession large amounts of money, averaging $800 each. CROSS OF FLOWERS

SERVICES OF DEDICATION WEEK OPEN SUNDAY AT LUTHERAN CHURCH

By Walt. Le Noir Church
Hearing the prayers, the speeches and the songs yesterday at the opening services of Dedication Week in the new First Lutheran Church of Glendale, one might easily perceive how the faithful little band of Lutheran devotees realized that, at last, their heavy cross was blossoming.

They had followed the example of their great earthly leader, the dauntless Monk of Gutenberg, Martin Luther. When God's own time arrived, Luther defied the whole opposing world and exclaimed: "Here I stand. I can do no other." Thus was the pivotal Lutheran Reformation launched.

After many vicissitudes in Glendale, the little band of Lutherans followed his example. When the time came for a Lutheran Temple, they went to work; and there the temple stands, while the work of preparation for dedication progresses, to be completed next Sunday, July 22, a day to be marked with a white stone by the Lutherans of Glendale for years to come.

The location of the Lutheran Temple is fine—at Fifth and Maryland, opposite the Glendale Union High School. It will be a continuous reminder to the youth of the four cities, their teachers, parents and friends, that the Sunday School, also, is important; that religious education has its own paramount place in the development of American citizenship.

The acoustics of the new Lutheran Temple are excellent. When enjoying the resonant tones of piano and voices, I wondered if that pleasant auditorium had been planned and constructed with an understanding which avoids all measurements of the fatal number fifteen and its multiples, which appear to so obstruct sound waves that results are deplorably confusing, often blurring harmony into inharmony.

FAREWELL SURPRISE

MISS CLARA WAUGH COMPLE- MENTED BY PRESBYTER- IAN CHOIR

The choir of the Glendale Presbyterian church believes in keeping up its social life. Sunday afternoon they met at the home of Mrs. T. D. Ogg, corner Second and Kenwood, and marched en masse to the home of Mrs. J. F. Lilly, where a glad surprise was given her sister, Miss Clara E. Waugh, who for several months past has been a faithful and very helpful member. Mr. Waugh, also a member, was unable to be present. Bouquets of beautiful flowers covered the large center table in the living room and the family were visibly touched when the singers sang "God be with you till we meet again." While on the front porch, just before leaving, they sang "Blest be the tie that binds."

Mr. Waugh and his family have been regular attendants upon the services of the church during the months of their stay in Glendale.

They start for their home in Colorado Springs on Tuesday morning and will leave behind them a host of friends who regret their departure from the city.

WORDS OF COMMENDATION

From everywhere within the territory over which the Evening News circulates, come words of commendation concerning the little Glendale daily paper. Newcomers are anxious to have their names placed upon the subscription list, often remarking, "We wish to see what your Glendale merchants have to sell." The Evening News is proud to state that as a rule the merchants who advertise through the columns of this paper are men in whom dependence can be placed. They are also men who identify themselves with everything that tends to unify and build up the local community. Our readers are asked to patronize them so far as it is possible to do so.

DEATH OF MISS DONICHY

Students of Glendale Union High School and a host of other friends are sorrowing because of the death of Miss Mary Margaret Donichy, who passed away Saturday, July 14, at 5:10 p. m. after a long illness at the home of her sister, Mrs. O. L. Pape-neaux, 1459 Ivy street. Miss Donichy was born December 17, 1885. She came to Glendale three years ago and was an instructor in Latin in Glendale Union High school until the middle of the last school year, when ill health compelled her to give up her work.

Funeral services are this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the Pulliam Undertaking parlors. Interment at Forest Lawn.

DEATH OF MISS MEREDITH

Miss Pearl B. Meredith passed away at her home, 214 West Ninth street, Monday morning, July 16. Miss Meredith had been living with her sister, Miss Caroline Meredith, at the above address for the past year. They were members of a theatrical company. The deceased was 37 years of age. The remains are at the parlors of the Pulliam Undertaking company awaiting word from relatives in East Orange, N. J.

SEVEN HILLS RIFLE AND RE- VOLVER CLUB

A number of prominent revolver shooters took part in the revolver practice yesterday and some fine scores were recorded. Dr. Packard still holds the lead, with Dr. Royce a close second. Thaxter and Boxall, of the Edison Electric Company, also put up a good score. Several ladies took part in the rifle shooting at the 200-yard target. Mrs. Van Patten of Pasadena scored the first bull's-eye, shooting offhanded with one of the Krag rifles and shooting with a squad of experienced riflemen.

THE BELL RINGERS

It will be a matter of some interest that the bell ringers, known as the Andrews family, who delighted the large congregation at the First Methodist Church Sunday evening, are brothers and sister of Mr. Harry Andrews, who has recently made his home in Glendale on North Kenwood street. These three brothers and a sister rendered several appropriate selections and well-known hymns in a most pleasing manner. The bell ringers are another of the unusual features which the church has added to their regular Sunday night service.

TELEPHONE PLAYS IMPORTANT PART IN WAR

This is the war of science as no other war ever was. The aircraft has annexed the heavens to the terrestrial field of battle. The submarine has made the deeps of the sea another sphere of maritime warfare. The telephone and the electric light, perhaps the most useful of scientific inventions for the practice of the arts of peace, also serve war with pitiless and impartial efficiency.

Is an order for the mobilization of armies to be spread over the land? The telephone transmits the order to the principal points, but the telephone speaks to the minor centers and dictates the details of mobilization. Are troops in battle to move forward? The telephone corps lays or strings the wires to the front and the transmitter and receiver are used on the firing line.

Throughout the United States the officials in charge of recruiting keep in constant touch with their subordinates by means of the 'phone. As recruits are enlisted the supplies required are recorded over the telephone. Is the recruit summoned suddenly? He 'phones to whomever he needs to consult, losing no time in writing for leave of absence or in running around. The telephone puts wings upon the feet of the military messenger, and is used to an extent of which the people in general have no idea.

The American Telephone company promptly offered its immeasurably valuable services to the national government. President Vail voluntarily declared that his great corporation would spare neither effort nor expense to meet the demand for military preparation. It will supply men and material for the telephone service of the army. It is in touch with thousands of linemen and electrical engineers. The staff at the headquarters of the company keep in constant touch with armories, fortifications, storehouses and training camps all over the country. Military necessities have imposed additional labor upon the company, and this service has the right of way over all else.

Our armies will draw heavily upon the telephone companies. The training camps will pay particular attention to using the telephone in the field. All officers will be required to understand what can be done with the telephone in military emergencies.—Spokesman Review, Spokane.

SAYS COMETS NOT VAGABONDS BUT LAW-ABIDING CITIZENS

The long-accepted belief has been overturned that most comets are mere vagabonds of the skies, threading a pathway around the sun and then wandering off forever into outer space.

The story of how the comets have been proved to be law-abiding citizens of our own solar system, paying constantly recurring visits to the neighborhood of our sun, is told by Professor A. O. Leuschner, Director of the Students Observatory and Dean of the Graduate School of the University of California, in a recent issue of "Science," the official organ of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, after having been presented by Professor Leuschner at a recent joint meeting in New York of the American Mathematical Society and the American Astronomical Society.

The reputation of the comet as a law-abiding citizen has been redeemed through great improvements devised by Professor Leuschner in the methods of mathematical computation to determine the orbits of comets, asteroids, and other heavenly bodies. Until a few years ago it was the habit of astronomers to begin the attempt to establish the orbit of a comet by trying a parabolic orbit, and if that seemed to fit the facts first observed, to rest content here. Professor Leuschner, however, by studying the variations of the actual movements of comets from the orbits announced by astronomers, demonstrated that all comet orbits are elliptical, and not parabolic, if observed with sufficient accuracy and for a sufficient length of time.

Building on foundations laid nearly a century and a half ago by Laplace, but long overlooked by the astronomical world, Professor Leuschner has worked out a method by which an elliptical orbit can be determined from three observations, and with comparatively brief labor in computing, while the older methods involve considerably more work, and often inaccuracy of results.

Professor Leuschner's method is based on a determination of the range of possible solutions for the orbit of a newly discovered heavenly body. By the use of tables which he has prepared, the theoretical solutions which will not work are promptly eliminated and the actual orbit determined.

These new methods have made the Students Observatory at Berkeley the world's recognized center for the determination of orbits for new comets. Moreover, the use of these methods has made it possible to identify newly discovered comets or planets with objects previously observed, then vanished from sight for long periods of time, and now re-identified.

These new methods make it possible also to decide whether a new heavenly body is a satellite, a minor planet, or a comet, in cases where mere observation by the telescope or the telescopic camera could not settle this question.

CROSS OF FLOWERS

W. Mottern, and his wife, both so efficient in all good works, and their daughter, Miss Elizabeth, so musically helpful in the church, high school and elsewhere, among those present at that first preparatory service were the Rev. A. B. Smart, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Imbler, Mr. and Mrs. John Esterly, Dr. and Mrs. F. H. Kuhns (the doctor being superintendent of the Sunday School), Mrs. W. A. Anderson, Mrs. Nels Melin, Mrs. J. F. Cullen, Mrs. V. S. Frazier, Mrs. Anna L. Smith, Mrs. Carter, Mrs. Fairchild, Miss Eleanor Mellin, Misses Emma and Helen Esterly, who with Miss Mottern contributed so much to the vocal and instrumental music, Messrs. Geo. F. Dougherty, R. Z. Imbler, Harry B. Walker, Ward Kuhn, Osborn Meighan, Carl Anderson, Gustav Welner and others. The flower decorations were beautiful, salpiglossis and gladioli of many splendid varieties, roses red and white and pink, with other lovely blossoms.

There too is found evidence of the irrepressible contest for supremacy between the sexes which is doing so much to promote twentieth century efficiency in all good works. Over the door between church and chapel are these words, "Girls Can't Be Beat." Over the east window is the opposing defy, "Boys Bound to Win." Whoever wins, the church and Sunday School will both be winners. The Rev. Mr. Mottern was graduated from the farm to the shop, and then, after strenuous efforts, to the pulpit. Such varied experiences greatly help him in his chosen life work.

The efficient Sunday School superintendent, Dr. Kuhn, is also an earnest lover of the work. Appearances are in favor of the belief that a large membership in Sunday School and church will be only a matter of time and faithful work, for which the First English Lutheran Church of Glendale is now well prepared.

Other Glendale ministers of various denominations will unite during the week to make the preparatory services interesting and profitable, as shown by the full program published in the Glendale Evening News last Saturday, with pictures of the church and pastor.

The pastor, in prayer and sermon, emphasized his conviction that the doctrine of the alleged divine right of kings is doomed; that out of the horrors of the present world war great good will come, and God's name and work will be honored as never before. That, he thought, is part and parcel of "God's divine purpose in the Church," which was the subject of his very forceful, interesting and convincing sermon yesterday morning.

"All things work together for the good of those who love the Lord." For God is ruler over all; and all His works are good. In this great acid test of nations, the United States of America will teach crown-burdened Europe, Asia and Africa the deeper, broader meaning of government of the people, by the people and for the people, which shall not perish from the earth.

POPULAR PICNIC REUNION, TENNESSEE AND KENTUCKY

The annual picnic reunion for both Tennessee and Kentucky will be held in Sycamore Grove, Saturday afternoon, July 21st, with basket picnic dinners at four o'clock. Coffee will be provided, but each one should bring cup and spoon with dinner. The county registers will be used so all may find friends. The program will be informal and around the tables with songs and brief talks with no set speeches. All who ever lived in either state are invited to join in the fun.

An unprepared man went to address a Sunday school. Thinking to be funny, he asked this question, "What would you do before so many bright boys and girls, who expect a speech from you, if you had nothing to say?"

"I'd keep quiet," replied a small boy.—St. Louis Mirror.

HOOVER PLEDGE CARDS

In response to the call from National and State Council of Defense, the Hoover pledge cards are now being circulated in Glendale. The Committee on Food Values, Canning and Preserving have them in charge and all meetings of women are asked to discuss and sign these pledges. If any one does not care to sign one, she is requested to write in her reasons for not doing so in order that these also may be returned to the Council of Defense. Any information in regard to these pledges or copies of them may be had from phone Glendale 1098. Many of the housewives have been practicing economy for months and years past and from such as these the nation is learning how much could be saved if we all gave more thought to well-balanced rations. Though the women, alone, are asked to sign, all members of the family are doing their bit when they accept the changed menus gladly in a spirit of patriotic service. "Not what we give but what we share." Money cannot buy the foodstuffs we waste if the supply is exhausted. We are not asked to starve ourselves, but we are urged to "eat plenty, but wisely and without waste." Isn't it just as patriotic a service to conserve our foodstuffs to help those who need them to live, as it is to save an hour's time and devote it to Red Cross sewing for those who are wounded?

MRS. A. A. BARTON.

The demonstration given at the City Hall on last Tuesday morning under the auspices of the committee on food values and canning and preserving was well attended and much interest displayed. The members of the committee report that they had numerous inquiries since that date as to details of the meeting. The demonstration to-morrow morning will be equally interesting.

Geo. D. Hastings of 209 North Maryland is enjoying a well-earned vacation, leaving Monday morning in company with Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Phair of 1507 West Fifth street for a ten days' outing at Catalina.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Pingree, 107 North Jackson street, Mr. and Mrs. Parsons, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Salisbury and Miss Maude Salisbury enjoyed a delightful auto trip yesterday through the Monte Vista country.

Joseph A. Wilson writes from Fallen Leaf, Calif., that he is enjoying himself very much in that beautiful country. No disagreeable weather, good season and all accommodations are taken and many turned away.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Kays, of Los Angeles, were guests of F. W. Kille and family, 815 South Louise street, Sunday. They were former residents of the same town in Missouri for many years before coming to California, consequently their visit Sunday was very much enjoyed.

Among those who have recently paid a year's subscription in advance and received a directory is Prof. A. B. Heacock, of 507 West Ninth street. Prof. Heacock was formerly President of the Chamber of Commerce and received the first copy off the press of the Glendale Evening News when it started.

Miss Sadie Yarnell of 1418 Myrtle street left Monday morning by boat for College Place, Washington, where she will visit her sister, Mrs. Westerhout, formerly Miss Mamie Yarnell of Glendale. Miss Yarnell is a popular teacher in the Columbus avenue school and will return in time for the fall opening of school.

Mr. and Mrs. Pierre V. Potter and daughter, Miss Dorothy Potter, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Tyler, were recent visitors at Yucaipi, where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. T. C. Jones, A. D. McCoy, W. S. Pigg and F. Bacon were members of a successful fishing party that camped at the Big Tejunja over Sunday. Leaving Glendale Saturday noon, they proceeded as far as auto could take them; then they transferred their outfit to wagons and were conveyed on up into the rocky canyon to what proved very good fishing places. Several members of the party caught the limit. Mr. Jones not only caught the limit, but also landed the largest trout of the catch. This fine fellow measured sixteen inches in length.

Mr. H. L. Clotworthy has been confined to his home for the past two weeks with a very painful attack of erysipelas.

Mrs. Maria Viohl of 1546 Colorado street, who is spending the summer at 1320 North Brand during the absence of her daughter, Mrs. Chas. H. Sanders, in the East, was the recipient of a very pleasant surprise on Monday last. A coterie of ladies of whom Mrs. Viohl is one, have a little club which in a spirit of pleasantry is styled the Jolly Dozen. This club, with a daintily prepared luncheon, appeared at the temporary home of Mrs. Viohl and a delightful day was spent together. The Jolly Dozen meet every two weeks.

ALLIES' FIESTA

At a very interesting general meeting Saturday night some forty people were present. The general manager, Miss Ina Whitaker, among other things, told them:

Directly after the great world Carnival of Nations at Shrine Auditorium I wished we could repeat it at Glendale, at least on a small scale. We talked of having a garden party somewhere, and Mrs. England offered the use of La Ramada park. The American Red Cross asked us to disband and go in with them, but I did not feel that we could do it, particularly as we were making bandages which I know are needed and the Red Cross here had not begun on that work, and for other reasons. I talked with Mr. England and we decided to go ahead and make a big thing of it.

Monday I went to the Red Cross executive meeting and told them all about it. Mr. Braly was very encouraging and said the Red Cross of Glendale would back us, 1000 strong. Mr. Church offered to look after publicity here in Glendale.

Tuesday I went to see Mr. Poulin to ask him to bring his club, and he offered to sing The Marseillaise.

Mrs. Willoughby Rodman promised to take charge of the Belgian booth and also said she would serve a fine Spanish dinner and charge two or three dollars a plate. I am not quite sure about this coming off, but Mrs. England will serve hot tamales and some other features.

Miss Beatrice Fox of Lamanda Park has just given an entertainment and made $800 for the Belgian children. She and her assistants are coming to take charge of the Welsh booth and Dr. Harrower will sing the Welsh national song.

Mrs. Edward Quinan will have the Irish booth, in Irish costume. Mr. A. C. Way will be treasurer. I also saw Miss Eleanor Whiting, secretary of the Allies in Los Angeles, and she sent me to some people who will help.

Mrs. Rattray is to represent Canada. I went to the British Ambulance Society headquarters in Los Angeles, to their meeting, and told them all about it. Miss Mortimer, daughter of the British Consul, said that she and the members of that society would place themselves at my command and she will take charge of a booth.

We saw the manager of the advertising for the Pacific Electric and he agreed to post the notice of the Fiesta on all the cars for the week, beginning with Monday.

I received Father O'Neill's promise to interest his Irish parishioners. Captain Vance, inviolated Canadian officer, who is the hero of some of the big battles and is here recuperating spoke at the British Ambulance Society, Los Angeles. He promised to come to the Fiesta. Think of it—a hero from the trenches!

Los Angeles stores have promised donations for the French and British booths.

Mrs. Hornsey, a newcomer, is to have the White Elephant and will be in native costume, with many things from Singapore. Dr. Hornsey, her husband, was ordered to France and left his family here on his way from Singapore to the front.

Mr. England will give potatoes and fruit from their garden to sell. Mr. Peterson of the Ellis Club will sing in costume.

The Clan Cameronians are coming and the Kilties Band.

The British Ambulance Society rooms next the Bank of Glendale will be open all day and every day this week for meetings. Those who can meet there at 2 p. m. Monday to make further plans are asked to do so. Others can come to the Chamber of Commerce for a fuller meeting at 8 o'clock Monday evening.

LUTHERAN CHURCH

To all interested in the most wonderful Gospel of St. John, at the Lutheran Church, Fifth and Maryland, will be given to-night some of the most beautiful pictures illustrating that book that have ever been seen in Glendale. For six months of this year the Sunday Schools studied that great book and for the benefit of the children and all interested these stereopticon pictures will be given to-night. This is the second step in the "Feast of Dedication" of this most beautiful little church. Its doors are always open for rest, meditation and prayer. This week is especially "open house" to all the people of Glendale. To-morrow night the various local ministers will bring their messages of cheer and encouragement and appreciation.

"When this pen flows too freely," run the instructions given with a fountain pen, "it is a sign that it is nearly empty, and should be filled." A wit has remarked that this also applies to fluent speech. Gossip, slander, idle chatter, all testify to the emptiness of the mind, and are a damaging sign."

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Rev. W. E. Edmonds preached Sunday morning on the text, "And the blood shall be to you for a token," in connection with the words, "It is a night to be much observed," Ex. 12: 13-17. This is a time when the world is looking for signs and tokens. This blood token placed over the door of a house in Egypt protected all within that house and in the observance of the Passover the people of Israel surely had reason to consider that night as "one to be much observed."

The blood sign has a five-fold significance: It is a distinguishing token, the sprinkling of blood marked all within the house as being protected by the Lord, and it is equally efficacious now. Sin is a capital offense; it deserves the severest punishment and that this does not follow, means that God's love tempers his justice, the sinner has upon him the distinguishing mark that is his salvation through the substitution of Jesus Christ. The blood mark is an insuring token; it conveys the promise, "I will pass over," as made by the Angel of Death in that dark Egyptian night. It enables the person who bears it to say, "I know in Whom I believe." It is a significant token. It indicated that those who dwell under it were under the protection of the Most High. The red mark meant safety.

It is a love token God gives the world although he owes it only judgment; all the sins of the world have not served to stop this stream of love. In this time when mothers are freely giving their sons, the love of God who gave his own son, can be the more easily appreciated. If God gives so freely to his enemies how much more shall he give to his friends!

This token is one of recognition; marked with it you are known to belong to Him. It is a sign of recognition between friends—it is a token recognized by God who, when he sees it, passes over our sins. The sign is recognized by the Devil also, who is always on man's track. It is not a rabbit's foot or a horse-shoe—you can't put it in your pocket or wear it on your neck. It must be worn publicly and so becomes your token of safety. Without this token there is no hope. Have you the token of the blood mark?

A purchaser of a riverside property asked the real estate agent if the river didn't sometimes overflow its banks.

"Well," replied he, "it isn't one of those sickly streams that are always confined to their beds."

A special election is to be held in Lordsburg on August 14 to vote on the question of changing the name of that city to La Verne.

MAKING A RIVER WORK

It wasn't the tide at Panama they feared so much as the Chagres River. You have no idea how it rains here during the rainy season. Why, I've seen that river rise twenty-five feet in a night. There would be no keeping such a flood out of the canal if it were cut down to sea level. So, instead of trying to keep the river out, the engineers decided to let it in and make use of it, only turning it into a lake instead, so that it can be kept under control. Accordingly, they have dammed up the whole Chagres valley at a place where it is about a mile and a half wide; and the reason they picked out that place was because there is a knob of rock in the middle of the valley where they could put the spillway, or overflow, and another mass of rock at one side to support the locks.

"But," I protested, "do you mean to tell us that big dam is not founded on rock?"

"It isn't like any dam you ever saw. Why, it's a hill of dirt half a mile thick at the base and tapering to a hundred feet at the top. And the funny part of it is that they built that dam with water!"

"With water!" I exclaimed. "Yes; muddy water. First they dumped a lot of rock across the valley to make two walls half a mile apart. Then dredges sucked up mud from the sea and pumped it up a long pipe line to the dam, where it poured out in a muddy stream between two walls. The fine mud settled to the bottom, and in time filled the space between the walls, while the water flowed over them, or trickled out between the stones, or was sucked up by the torrid sun. In that way a plug or core of clay was built across the valley, and on it earth was piled and more mud was pumped in, until at last the top rose one hundred and five feet above sea level."—St. Nicholas.

TECHNICAL TERMS USED IN CONNECTION WITH ICEBERGS

Slob ice is loose, broken ice that collects in bays and along the exposed edges of floes; it is usually more or less discolored and contains some miscellaneous flotsam. Sheet ice is a large piece of floe or bay ice that drifts to sea unbroken. A floe is a collection of sheets of ice, more or less connected by freezing. A shore floe or ice foot is a floe frozen fast to the shore. Brash ice is a collection of small pieces of ice not frozen together; I have seen this word written trash and thrash. A field of brash ice is called sludge. A pan is a large sheet of ice thicker at the edges than in the middle. Rafting is the piling-up of sheet on sheet of ice by the action of wind and sea. A field is a large collection of any kind of ice, particularly of pans, drift at sea. A pack is a large collection of heavy ice closely packed together and impossible of navigation. A glacier is a stream of solid ice flowing down a declivity. Calving is the breaking off of an iceberg from its mother glacier or of a growler from a berg. An iceberg is a large piece of glacial ice. A growler is a small piece of ice, but large enough to be dangerous to navigation. A floeberg is a large mass of sea ice built up by rafting and freezing.—From report of Captain C. E. Johnston, commander of the ice patrol ship, the Seneca.

HUNTINGTON BEACH CAMP-MEETING

Huntington Beach will be the scene of the Thirtieth Annual Session of the Methodist Assembly on July 22, continuing until August 5th. It will come as good news to those who attended the assembly last year to know that Dr. D. F. Howe, the masterful leader, will again be present. Professor Hillis, the noted and efficient baritone who is unexcelled as a leader of choruses, will be in charge of the music.

An up-to-date grocery, cafeteria and confectionery store will be located on the grounds in order to provide every comfort for those attending.

THE RUBY FOR THE JULY GIRL

"The glowing ruby shall adorn Those who in July were born; Then they'll be exempt and free, From Love's doubt and anxiety."

No other birthstone bears with it such strong and beautiful meanings as does the ruby. Divine power, dignity, and charity are the mystic thoughts that accompany this glowing gem, and to the July-born girl they open a heritage that she should claim and then cultivate in the pure garden of her young heart.

As the European war will test the life of the nation, so it will develop its citizenship. Millions of young men have grown up in our country without military training, without learning discipline, having no training in obedience to authority, little or no respect for the government whose protection they enjoy. In the next few years these citizens who have come to manhood since the civil war, will be subjected more or less to that hammering on the anvil of wartime that puts temper into manhood. They will learn to right dress, toe the mark and to obey commands.—The Manufacturer.

One of the things that don't come to the bald-headed man who waits is hair.

WHAT IS PRACTICAL EDUCATION?

There is a very large number of persons who are not interested at all in acquiring knowledge simply as knowledge. Their first question about any kind of general information is, What's the use of it? and unless they can see some way of deriving advantage from it, either in the form of profit or of prestige or of social standing, they do not care anything about it.

The Kansas City Star takes up a very difficult task when it tries to convince the average man that knowledge is a valuable acquisition even if one cannot at the time see any direct advantage to be gained by it. When the present writer was at school he wanted to be excused from studying Latin because he could not see any good in it, but the teachers were wiser than he was, and though he did not get on very far with the Latin he profited more probably by his lessons in it than by any of the other subjects taught in the school.

The Star says: "High school and college students, and their parents, too, for that matter, are apt to be exercised these days over the need of what they call 'practical studies.' To such persons an incident may be cited from a recent volume, Discovery; or, The Spirit and Service of Science, by an English scientist, Professor R. A. Gregory:

"Many years ago Faraday, the great physicist, was lecturing before a distinguished audience in London. In one of his experiments he showed that when a magnet was brought near a coil of wire a current of electricity was produced in the wire. It was not an impressive experiment, and a woman in the audience said to him after the lecture, 'But, Professor Faraday, even if the effect you explained is obtained, what is the use of it?' His reply was, 'Madam, will you tell me the use of a newborn child?'"

"His experiment led to the development of the electric motor, with all its far-reaching consequences. If it had not been for studies and experiments that the world at the time considered highly impractical and wholly useless there would have been no civilization and mankind would still be living in caves and killing game for food with stone axes."

Persons who do not value knowledge for its own sake do not realize that knowledge is the food of the mind, which grows only in proportion to the measure in which it acquires knowledge and tries to obtain clearer, juster, and more comprehensive views of truth. They do not realize that there is more real pleasure, and more lasting pleasure, to be obtained by developing the powers of the mind than can be obtained by developing the powers of the body.

But that is not all. They overlook the fact that all real knowledge is valuable in itself; and especially in that it opens the door to the acquisition of other knowledge, for even the wisest man cannot tell to what important results some apparently insignificant fact may lead if it is studied with sufficient care. The world knew nothing about the law of gravitation until Isaac Newton saw an apple fall from a tree and asked himself the questions, What made it fall? Why does anything fall? He studied these questions until he found the answer. And his discovery of the law of gravitation has not only made possible many mechanical uses of that power, but has enabled men to weigh the earth and the sun and the planets, and even some of the almost infinitely distant stars, and to learn a great many other facts about the stars and our solar system which could not have been learned without it.—Selected.

As a warning to automobilists in and about Memphis, Tennessee, park commissioners of that city caused elevations to be placed within fifty feet of dangerous railroad crossings. These bumps are about six feet wide at the base and two feet wide at the top. After various tests, this form of danger signal has been found most effective. Los Angeles has also been trying out a similar scheme of warning the motoring public.

BOOST!

Boost your city, boost your friend, Boost the church that you attend, Boost the street on which you're dwelling, Boost the goods which you are selling, Boost the people round about you, They can get along without you, But success will quicker find them If they know that you're behind them.

Boost for every forward movement, Boost for every new improvement, Boost the man for whom you labor, Boost the stranger and the neighbor, Cease to be a chronic knocker, Cease to be a progress blocker, If you'd make your city better Boost it to the final letter.

The speed of a gasoline motor bicycle which has its motor in the front wheel is controlled by a flexible cable connected with the right handle bar. When the grip is turned to the right, the speed is increased, while turning it to the left causes the bicycle either to slow down or to stop. The brake is operated by a back-pedaling movement.

THE HIGH DIGNITY OF WORK

"Who puts back into place a fallen bar, Or flings a rock out of a traveled road,

His feet are moving toward the central star,

His name is whispered in the gods' abode."

When, some years ago, the late Colonel George E. Waring took charge of the street-cleaning department of New York City, he found the street cleaners doing their work in a careless, carnal, joyless fashion. There was no mind in their muscle, no heart in their handiwork. The men were ashamed of their calling. They went at their work in sloven clothes, with slouching gait, feeling that they were the scavengers of the city, the rejected of men.

Here was labor divorced from idealism. Colonel Waring knew that some ideal light must be made to shine from even the meanest work—that the worker must have some joy and pride in his toil or his work is a failure. Or more tragical still, the man himself will be a failure.

What did Colonel Waring do—this man of heart and imagination? Not all that could be done—not all that ought to be done; but he did something. He called the street-sweepers before him, and, with a fine enthusiasm that was infectious, he fired their minds with a sense of their high mission to the city; he made them feel that they were verily the Knights of Cleanliness, the Custodians of the Public Safety, the Guardians of the Public Health. He especially called them to the duty of defending the little children of the metropolis from the wolves of disease.

The words of Colonel Waring stirred the hearts of the workers. For the first time they saw themselves intrusted with a great treasure; felt themselves lifted to a place of dignity and honor, knew themselves to be valued and honored by at least one man of worth and distinction.

Colonel Waring dressed his men in white uniforms, symbolic of the purity that was to be their aim in all their labors. We all know the result. With this ideal in their hearts, and this man as a center of energy, the workers went out like a white army; the atmosphere clarified, the death-rate went down, New York became, perhaps, the cleanest city in the world.

These men labored at the most humble and thankless work, with some feeling of their partnership with the purifying and protecting powers of the universe. In a degree they worked as gods, not as stolid and joyless hirelings of the hour.

So all true work is more than a precious discipline laid upon the soul. Necessity and discipline—these words are too cold and too hard to express the loftiest beauty in the face of Labor—Edwin Markham.

THE ORIGIN OF "MASCOT"

According to the superstitions of the old peasants of France and Germany, the word "mascot" comes from "mascotte," meaning a person born to give others good luck. The mascotte was not supposed to bring good fortune to herself, but those whom she loved were destined to enjoy a long life filled with honor and every blessing they could wish.

When, in old Germany, the peasant folk discovered a child they thought was a true mascotte, they treated her as if she were a princess in disguise. Gifts, affection, and all kinds of attention were showered on her in the hope that she would give the givers a little of her affection and love in return; then, according to their belief, they could never be affected by anybody born with "malocchio," or the evil eye, that cursed all upon whom it looked.

It was not uncommon in old days of early settlement in this country, when the Germans, especially, came here, to find the courts trying to settle who should adopt a certain orphan child. The secret usually was that the child in question was supposed to be a mascotte, and the foster parents would be blessed.

After a while the spelling changed to "mascot," and the meaning of the word was considerably moderated to refer to anybody who happened to bring "good luck" to a party or game. Mascots to-day are mostly found on athletic fields, such as dogs or bears or donkeys, which are paraded before a game with a rival college. Ships have their mascots in the shape of cats, goats, and dogs. But the original meaning is lost, and the old superstition of being born a mascotte has, for the most part, been entirely forgotten.—Exchange.

A saving of from fifteen to twenty-five per cent. is effected by using coal dust or powdered coal in the locomotive. Sweepings, screenings, slack, and other coal products which were once considered waste material make excellent steam generators. Locomotives of the New York Central, the Chicago and Northwestern, and the Delaware and Hudson systems are all specially equipped for burning pulverized fuel.

"The lonely people of the world are usually those who, instead of going out and winning love and friendship, are standing still and waiting for love and friendship to come to them."

One of the newest of these is kiang grass Kiang grows in abundance in Burma, and by a simple process is being converted into paper pulp.
